Report on the measures taken with regard to the request from the Ethiopian authorities for the extradition of three Egyptians suspected of involvement in the attempted assassination of the President of Egypt and thought to be in the Sudan

1. In a letter from the President of Ethiopia to the President of the Sudan dated 25 July 1995 and received on 27 July 1995, the Ethiopian Government submitted a request for the extradition of three foreigners of Egyptian origin, namely Mustafa Hamza, Izat or Yasim, and Husayn Ahmad Shait Ali. The letter stated that the persons known as Mustafa Hamza and Izat were already in the Sudan when Husayn Ahmad Shait Ali entered the country on the day of the incident by Sudan Airways using a forged Sudanese passport.

2. As soon as the request was received, an inter-agency commission was formed under the chairmanship of the Public Prosecutor and including three police officers, an officer from the security service and an officer from military intelligence. The decree establishing the commission, issued on 28 July 1995, granted it full investigative powers and gave it one week in which to complete its task.

3. The commission carried out its work with respect to procedures for the extradition of the wanted criminals in the light of the 1964 Extradition Treaty between Ethiopia and the Sudan, which was ratified in 1966.

4. The investigating authorities studied the request submitted by the Ethiopian authorities, together with its attachments, and took the following series of measures with a view to bringing to light the facts relating to the information provided in the request:

(a) The commission had the Attorney General order the prosecuting attorney in charge to issue an arrest warrant for the wanted men.

(b) It also had the Public Prosecutor issue a warrant for the arrest of the three men.

(c) On 31 July 1995 a bulletin giving the available descriptions of the men was issued and circulated by the Central Criminal Investigation Department and the Central Military District to all points of entry to and egress from Khartoum, all police stations and departments, all checkpoints on roads leading into cities and all ports, airports and border crossings in order to ensure that the men were arrested and to prevent their movement or departure from the country.

(d) On 31 July 1995 the commission wrote to the Passport Office requesting information about the men, including details of their dates of entry to the Sudan, their addresses and their residence permits, and ordering that they be prohibited from leaving the country until such time as investigations were completed.

(e) On 31 July 1995 the commission wrote to the Passport Office requesting information about passport No. 63203, issued in the name of Faysal Lutfi Abd al-Latif, and details of the bearer's entry to the Sudan from Ethiopia on 26 July 1995.

(f) The commission received notification from the Passport Office that the wanted persons had no immigration record and that any entry they had made to the Sudan had gone unrecorded since they were Egyptian nationals and thus not subject to immigration controls under the reciprocal arrangements that had been in force between the two countries for decades. The search of arrival cards from past years was continuing in order to ascertain whether or not they had entered the country. The commission was also informed that passport No. 63203 appeared in the records as having been issued to the Sudanese citizen Izz al-Din Ala' al-Din Awsh-Allah and that there was no record in the name of Faysal Lutfi Abd al-Latif. Khartoum Airport records included an entry card in that name among those of passengers arriving on Sudan Airways flight 327 from Addis Ababa on 26 July 1995.

(g) On 29 July 1995 the commission began looking for the locations mentioned in the request from the Ethiopian authorities, such as the addresses of the person known as Mustafa Hamza or Izz al-Din. It transpired that there was evident confusion about the locations, and there were contradictions that made it impossible for the commission to find them. As a result of these contradictions, it could not locate the exact properties described but undertook such investigations as were possible in the light of the available data. Searches were made of seven houses in Arkawit, a house in the Imarat area and a house in the Kober (Cooper) quarter, as well as a number of farms around Khartoum. These measures did not result in the arrest of any of the three men, and searches are continuing.

(h) The commission carried out its inquiries through the relevant security services and on the basis of the periodic reports submitted by airports, seaports, border crossings and city exit and entry points. It found nothing to indicate movement by any of the persons concerned or that any of them had entered or left the country.

(i) At the end of the seven-day period laid down in the decree establishing the commission, the investigating authorities submitted a report to the Minister of the Interior indicating that the investigation had not been completed and that it was still under way. The commission highlighted the difficulties it had encountered because of the submission of the Ethiopian request more than one month after the incident had taken place and because insufficient information had been provided on the wanted men. Names were incomplete, and the descriptions given were insufficient for purposes of identification and could not lead to arrests. The Ethiopian authorities had also failed to submit any statements from witnesses or any documents to support their claim that the persons known as Mustafa Hamza and Izat were in the Sudan. The documents submitted by the Ethiopian court indicated that their whereabouts were unknown, and the Extradition Treaty between the two countries relies exclusively on documents from the relevant court. The commission has requested additional information from the Ethiopian side.

(j) When, on 7 February 1996, the investigating authorities received reports from the Central Criminal Investigation Department and the Central Military District that efforts for the arrest of the wanted men had met with no success, they proceeded to take the legal step specified for such an eventuality, namely the dissemination of bulletins concerning those being sought asking that they should be turned over to the nearest police station within a specified period of time. The bulletins included what descriptions were available of the men and urged the general public to participate in the search for them and in their apprehension or to give information about them. The bulletins were broadcast on television and radio and published in the Arabic and English daily newspapers over a three-day period without leading to the arrest of the suspects or to any information about them being given to the investigating authorities.

(k) With the aim of advancing the work of the investigation, the investigating authorities recommended that measures should be taken to register Egyptian nationals. Beginning on 9 August 1995 all Egyptian nationals arriving in the country, other than those carrying diplomatic passports, were registered. On 7 February 1996 the commission notified all Egyptian nationals who had been residing in the Sudan before the registration system came into operation that they should register at the nearest police station.

(l) The investigating authorities requested information on the wanted men from the general secretariat of the International Criminal Police Organization (ICPO-Interpol) through its liaison office in Khartoum. On 15 February 1996 a reply was received saying that no information on them was available.

(m) The Minister of the Interior issued a directive to governors and local and popular authorities to assist in the search for the foreigners being sought, and on 26 February 1996 it was announced that a financial reward would be given to anyone helping to arrest the men or providing information about them. Governors gave instructions to governorates and localities that every effort should be made to look for the wanted men.

(n) The investigating authorities are examining the periodic reports submitted by all departments, checkpoints, ports, airports and border crossings in order to detect and prevent the departure of any of the suspects should they be here.

5. The investigating authorities have found that the records of Khartoum International Airport include a card bearing the name of Faysal Lutfi Abd al-Latif as having been among the passengers who arrived on Sudan Airways flight 327 from Ethiopia on 26 June 1995. The address given on the entry card is "near the mosque, Kober quarter". A search was made of every part of this neighbourhood, but no address was found for him. Airport taxi records were also examined but did not produce the name of the wanted man. The passport he was carrying was forged.

6. The investigating authorities have found nothing to indicate the arrival in the Sudan of the person known as Mustafa Hamza and the person known as Izat or Yasim or to show that they had entered the country at any time in the past. Similarly, there is no record of any of the three men having left the Sudan through legal points of departure such as airports, seaports and border crossings.

7. The investigating authorities have received no information to supplement that given in the original Ethiopian request. They therefore reinforced their initial request and the remarks they had made concerning the Ethiopian request with a letter dated 14 February 1996 addressed to the Ethiopian Ministry of Foreign Affairs elucidating the comments made and indicating the information required with a view to obtaining that information from the Ethiopian authorities.

8. The search and the investigation are continuing within the scope of the information contained in the request submitted by the Ethiopian authorities. For more satisfactory results to be achieved, more information must be provided on previous movements by the suspects between Ethiopia and the Sudan and fuller and clearer descriptions of the locations and persons involved must be made available. Documents and testimony must be submitted to support the Ethiopian claim that Mustafa Hamza and Izat are in the Sudan, given that the letter from the court, which is the central document on which the operation of the Extradition Treaty depends, gives no indication that they are in the country. Similarly, the measures taken by the commission have produced nothing to support the claim that they are in the Sudan.
